SEEN, HEARD AND TOLD

By W. W. WHITAKER
When he feels like it.

Hemphill Abel, for reelection as assessor, leads the bunch of rat-racers this week. Grady Carroll makes the race for Circuit Clerk a foursome. Otis Benoist and Inman Rounsaville make the race for Beat One Supervisor a threesome.

Rice Presagrove, Proby and Will Harris Crowder are still what Keene calls "showing signs."

Beat 4 is boiling with prospective candidates. That's where politics originated, there and in Tallahatchie County.

I thought it was mighty nice and thoughtful of Brother Grimes to reproduce the law regarding the salaries of supervisors, last week. I had been wondering what they got.

Tom and Mary Meek have a new baby - a cute little Pekinese puppy. He seems to be much like that stupid cat, Buckingham, in our home.

Brother King Floyd came into the office one Thursday about two weeks ago and said he wanted to announce for Circuit Clerk. We advised him to get up his piece and come in next week, when we would have more time and space and advised him that, in the meantime, he had better break his leg, or something like that. That office, by tradition seems to belong to those who are more or less incapacitated. But we aint seen Brother Floyd since. He must have got mad about the advice I gave him.

The city forces cut down the huge old oak tree in the public square this week, making the old place look better, but more bare.

I really got the low down at the ground hog barber shop Tuesday. Sax Weir, like I do, wants everybody to run for something. He may, he said, get a shave or a hair cut out of all of them. Mrs Weir, he said, is now in the hospital, but getting on OK.

Some of us fellows on Growing Green have posted a sign, "For the convenience of our customers we will remain open until we decide to close."

The genial antique merchant, Albert Cohen, has added such a sign to his emporium. In fact, he now has three signs.

Congratulations to Cousin Adele Hoffa on her birthday, but I dont know which one, as she did not say.

Bill Cunningham ,who broke the ice in the political rat race here was politicking with King Floyd, seeking to get Floyd to "help beat Charlie Warsham." Floyd who had already announced said, I am with you, I am running myself. Bill, soon to be called back to the vets hospital, wont be around for several weeks politicking with Floyd or anybody else.

W. H. KIRK, "ONE MAN INDUSTRY" OF GRENADA, DIED HERE MONDAY; NATIVE OF TENNESSEE

The man who put his thought, energy and money into almost everything that went on in this community from the early 20s until his passing Monday, died here Moday, February 7, 1955. He is the man, frequently referred to in these columns as "Kirk" and the man about whom this newspaper cherished the hope of giving an extensive write-up, a hope that never came to print.

His full name was William Hester Kirk, a native of Hollow Rock, Harris County, Tennessee. He had almost reached his 79th birthday.

His widow who survived was the former Miss Ella Inez Jones of Oakland, Louisiana whom he married June 29, 1913. His early manhood was spent first as a teacher, then as a saddelry salesman in this part of the South, including Grenada, a place that caught his eye as a field of opportunity. After the Kirks married, they moved here and have lived here ever since.

Mr. Kirk has been "into" everything: member of school board, bank director, Rotarian, welfare board member, farmer, cattleman, ginner, mule dealer, money-lender (and money-borrower), builder of homes - everything. At the time of his death, he was said to be the biggest land owner in the county.

He had sense, (period) He could and would buy a yearling, pay for him and ride off, yet, it was truly said, Mr. Kirk could identify that yearling if, perchance, he saw the hide in the tan yard. He had a rare sense of "flesh marks."

Services held at the First Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon at 2:30 drew a large concourse of friends of all walks of life and burial followed at Woodlawn Memorial Park. Rev. John Landrum officiated, assisted by the minister from Drew, Rev. B. M. Doggett and Rev. W. Taylor Clarke, Presbyterian minister of Grenada.

Pall bearers were Messrs O. R. Lilly, Sr., Junius Townes, Chas. Perry, Irvin Johnson, Sr., J. B. Perry, A. L. Gerrard, John Keeton and H. J. Ray, Jr.

Epilogue: It is just one of the facts of life that this writer long envisaged the publication herein, at the time that Kirk was here and could read it, of him as Grenada's "one-man industry", but lack of space, time and the real facts present another frustration about the realization of a concise story of the man who has been one of the biggest men in the county.

Otis Benoist Seeks Job As Supervisor Of Beat One

To The Democratic Voters Of Beat One of Grenada County:

After careful consideration, I am announcing as a candidate for Supervisor of Beat One of Grenada County.

I am forty-two years of age, have a wife and two children. I have lived in Beat One since the year 1939, when I moved here to accept a job with the Koppers Company. In 1943 I resigned my position with them to go into business for myself, and have operated my own business since that time.

At one time I was employed with the Mississippi State Highway Department. A part of my duties while with the Koppers Company was the construction of framing for bridges. I am experienced in the servicing and upkeep of heavy machinery.

I make the solemn promise and pledge to you that if elected I will give prompt and proper service to the people of the entire Beat, and will look after the interest of the County in a business-like manner. I will strive to give every citizen such type of service that no one will ever have occasion to regret my election to this important office.

I will appreciate your support.

Sincerely,
OTIS BENOIST

Began Practice In 1905; Moved To Holcomb In 1910

Dr. Archie Spencer Hill who served the community of Holcomb well over a half century, died in his home in Holcomb Tuesday morning, February 8, 1955.

We was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Hill and was born in Sharon ,Miss. May 6, 1864.

He attended the medical college in New Orleans and later the Memphis Medical College from which he was graduated in 1902. In 1952 Dr. Hill was honored at his old alma mater in the ceremony observing the 50th anniversary of its few remaining graduates, of which the deceased was one.

In 1905 he began his profession career in the small community of Stokes, Miss. After that time he and Miss Lola Brock were married and, soon thereafter, they moved to the then newly established community of Holcomb at which place he and his wife spent their lives and at which he was once Mayor. He has been for many, many years a member of the Holcomb Methodist Church. Dr. Hill was a Mason.

Dr. Hill is survived by his widow, four sons and one daughter, the sons being M. S. Hill and J. R. Hill of Holcomb, E. B. Hill of Cleveland and A. S. Hill Jr. of Jackson. His daughter is Mrs. R. W. "Hemp" Abel Re-Election

C. H. "H[illegible]bel, who has served the past [illegible]ars as Grenada County's obligin[illegible]y tax assessor-is announcing thru these columns his desire to be reelected in the August primaries.

Mr. Abel has served the county well in the intricate work of his office where he has able assistants always on the job, always willing to look up facts and figures for them, and always very courteous in doing so.

His present tenure in office is his first venture in the official life of the county where, most folks say, he has made good.

In the time intervening between today and the day of election, it is Mr. Abel's intention and desire to see, personally, all the folks in the county to give a report of his stewardship, as well as to press his claims for the continued suffrage of the people of Grenada County.

In the meantime, this newspaper invokes for him the tolerant consideration of the voters of Grenada County.

Inman Rounsaville Asks Suffrage of Citizens, Beat 1

Inman Rousaville native of Pearidge of Beat 4, but for a good many years identified with what goes on in Grenada, wants to be the Supervisor of this beat, Beat One, and paid his stud fee Tuesday and wants his name in the semi-official pot.

He ,therefore, is running, has his name in the pot, and has candidate cards on order, and the citizens of Beat One many of whom already see him with his monthly milk bills from Quinn's, every month, will see him more frequently when he will press his claims for your suffrage as supervisor as well as seek payment for the milk bill.

After leaving his rural home near Pearidge, Mr. Rounsaville worked several years with the Koppers Company at Tie Plant, then worked other years at Grenada Industries, in all of which work he made good. Before leaving Beat 4, he worked for and with Oscar Geeslin and Clinton Thomason, both former supervisors, on the roads of that beat and, therefore, he already knows a heap about such matters which are of paramount imporance for those obtaining the post Mr. Rounsaville seeks.

To the kindly consideration of the folks of Beat One, we obediently turn the political aspirations of Inman Rounsaville, who seems very earnest in his desire to fill a post once held so long by his lamented father, Ira G. Rounsaville or, as he was most often known, "Cousin" Ira

Little stories . . . Quotes . . . Oddities:

A man wrote to the editor of his home town paper saying: When I was a boy there was a tree growing over a wall in that town that had the most delicious peaches on it. I am old now, but can still remember those peaches and have never been able to find any like them. I wonder if you can tell me the kind they were." The The editor answered: "There are no such peaches any more. Those peaches were sweet because you were a boy and life was sweet. Those were some of the first peaches you had ever eaten, and they hung over a wall. You will never find a peach like them again." Well, maybe that little thought will start you reminiscing into those years gone by where no doubt there are many very pleasant incidents or experiences waiting there to give you a good and cheerful feeling. For an example, here is one of my own "great play-backs" that comes swiftly into mind. When I was about 12 years old I was sick with typhoid fever for a very long time. Had temperature for 100 consecutive days, and for the extra incentive to get well, my father promised me a new boy's type saddle for my very own when I was able to ride again. After a very long wait I finally received that saddle and honestly no automobile I have ever owned gave me half the thrill and pleasure of possession as did that saddle. In the past years I find myself exploring every hardware store I come upon for a look at [illegible] saddles. But, I guess it is like the man who remembered the peaches from a tree that hung over a wall in his boyhood and never found another like them any where else in the big wide world. I too will never find a saddle like the one my Dad gave me so long ago.

The saddest words of tongue or pen: "We just sold Junior's buggy and then . . . "

A minister told his Sunday School children a story about a shepherd who found a sick lamb and wrapped it in one of his garments and took it home to nurse it back to health. "Now, he concluded, do any of you children know a story in which such a kind action was expressed:" There was silence. Then a little girl said: "I didn't see this myself, but I heard my daddy say he put his shirt on a horse and lost it". Well, telling that is only a sly way of reminding you Mississippians who are looking for an excuse to visit Hot Springs, Arkansas that the annual race meet starts in that fair and famous Spa on February 19th this year.

Did you know. Biggest migraine that beer people have had in some time is the new ruling which prohibits TV commercials to show people drinking beer after January. 1st. It will result in the biggest brewing firms having to scrap thousands of feet of film showing happy guzzlers quaffing the brew.

Heard of a lady who had been an avid follower of radio quiz contests but never won as much as a spool of thread. Last week she was released from the hospital after a bout with tetanus. Still partially paralyzed scarcely able to totter around and unable to hold a book, she turned to the radio to help kill the long hours. She was able to identify the name of a song in a radio contest. What was the prize - three free dancing lessons.

Blasting away on his saxophone after midnight, an amateur musician was interrupted by a knock on his door and a voice which inquired, "Do you know there's a lady sick downstairs . . . "None," replied the musician, "hum a little of it Mac."

This one for Ed or Ernest Penn: Two golfers were playing a fairway along side a highway when a funeral procession passed. One golfer bowed his head, removed his cap. The other one said "I never saw you do that before, why?" The first golfer said "Well had she lived till next Wednesday we would have celebrated our 25th wedding anniversary."

THE BIBLE SPEAKS

International Uniform Sunday School Lessons

BY DR. KENNETH J. FOREMAN

Scripture: John 3:1-21; 10:7-16; Acts 16:19-34; II Corinthians 5:17.
Devotional Reading: Romans 8:1-11.

The Closest Bond

Lesson for February 13, 1955

"WHAT do you mean by conversion?" said a business man to a preacher. "You are always talking about it. I know what conversion means in my business—I had to convert a plant from war time to peace time production. But what's conversion in religion?"

Dr. Foreman

If the minister were smart, he would take up the business man's own illustration. Conversion in the personal life is just what it is in a factory, a change of the personal life, a re-tooling, turning out something different from what used to be turned out. Before conversion a man may be, so to speak, in a state of war with himself, with his fellow men and even with God. After conversion he has peace of conscience, he lives at peace within and without.

Born Again

The word "conversion" is used in different Christian circles to mean somewhat different things, or to be more exact, the word as some use it covers a long period of time, while with others it refers to one instant only. That is, "conversion" as Christians use the word can mean a long, indeed life-long process of change, or it can mean the very start of that long process. Now one of the favorite Bible expressions to describe the beginning of the new life is "turn." It is as simple as that. Anybody who ever drove a car or sailed a boat, rode a mule or even walked, knows what turning is. Children know it. You are headed in one direction and then you head in another. That's what conversion is. You are headed down the devil's road and then you turn off on to God's road—and they do not end at the same destination! But of course there is something that happens on the inside that makes the traveler want to turn; and this happening-on-the-inside is what we call the New Birth. God brings the seed of the new life but we have to take over from there. The New Birth is God's part, conversion—turning—is our part, of the new life in Christ.

Sign of Life

No farmer can create seeds, no scientific agronomist can put life into seed that is dead. But the farmer has to put the seed into the ground, he has to keep the weeds out, he has to do whatever that particular crop needs to nurse it along till harvest time. How does he know that the seed is alive? Only one way to tell, the farmer would say. Does it come up? Does it grow? So in the Christian life, no one can look directly into a human heart and say, "Here is new life." But a truly converted, live Christian can be known by the signs of life. The jailer at Philippi described in Acts asked "What must I do to be saved?" and was told, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." No one could see him believing. No camera has yet been invented that will photograph the action of the human spirit or the Divine Spirit. But between midnight and morning there in the jail house that jailer gave good evidence that he had really believed, and that the Holy Spirit had really begun to change the direction of his life. Before midnight he had been a hard cruel man. Now we see him trying to undo the harm he has done. He unselfishly shares what he has, he is baptized as a sign of his new life, he is a happy man.

Everything New

One of the points most often brought up by critics of Christianity from the outside is that Christians seem not to be different from any one else, or not different enough to matter. There is a good deal of truth behind this. All churches have their share — some congregations seem to have more than their share—of members who have never been converted. Their lives are in the old worn-out pattern of the world, there is nothing new and vital and different about them. Let us come down to brass tacks. What is there that ought to be and will be new in a Christian's life? Certainly the center of his life will be different. What Paul calls the "old man" asks invariably about anything he does, "What's in it for me? How will this help me to get ahead of other people?" But the "new man in Christ" learns to ask, "Is this what Christ would do?" The learning sometimes comes hard, but it brings the deepest happiness known to man.

SEEN, HEARD & TOLD BY THE EDITOR

We cannot but speak the things which we have seen and heard.—Acts 4:20.

I understand WPA Hamby is back "home" helping Mrs. Goodwin monkey with those fine commodities. I heard he was going to run for JP.

I dont think that we can yet count out McHenry Allison from the Sheriff's race. Folks who ran as close as he did last time hardly ever quit running until they die. Mc aint dead yet.

We had a subscriber, Mr. W. J. Lightsey of Rt. 3, Laurel who died recently at the age of 84. I had not seen Mr. Lightsey since the first of the late 20s, when he cruised some timber near Oxberry. He and his helper stayed with us and a great attachment came up between them and my family. We excanged Christmas cards nearly every Christmas. Finally he became a subscriber. He was a grand old man and we thank his daughter, Mrs. K. C. Myric for the sad information about his recent death.

Albert Cohen, the antique merchant on Short Street, is nothing, if not a diplomat in this closing and non closing embroglio in Grenada. Albert says he displays both signs: the sign, I will close ,and the sign, I will stay open, thus pleasing both sides. He says he plans to do like the GCW does: close when he wants to, and stay open when he wants to.

In order that we may achieve peace in Grenada business circles, may I bring up again a suggestion that Grenada adopt from the Spaniars a siesta scheme of closing each day at noon, taking a long nap, then reopening about 4. Have a town crier in the square shouting to folks, "Coffeeville is open, so is Calhoun City" and adding that Sears-Roebuck has plenty fo stuff that you can get in a days time.

Anyway, we are happy that we are getting $10 from one side and $10 from the other. Go to it, boys, nothing is better than a good fight. In the meantime, we are going to open when we please close when we want to go fishing.

Just so th C. of C. dont move the post office and bus station to 51 highway, as I heard recently.

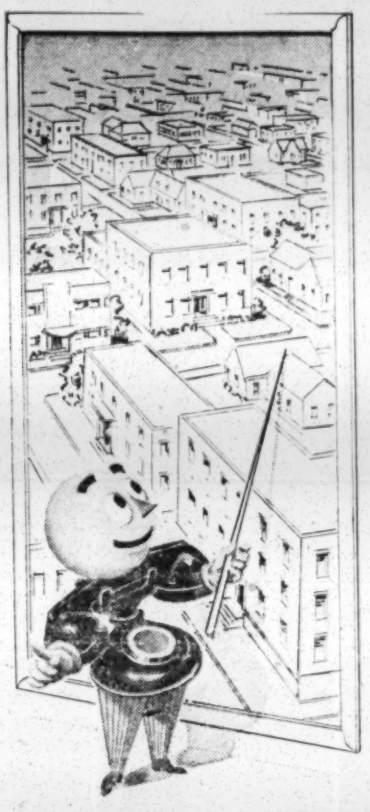
Growing MISSISSIPPI now served by 157 Telephone Exchanges...

...and 25 Modern Dial Switching Units in the State's Rural Areas...



If all the buildings housing Southern Bell switching equipment in Mississippi were in one place, you'd get a good idea of what is takes to provide telephone service over an area of 40,000 square miles, or 85% of the state. You'd see 182 buildings.

In the vast area we serve, there is an average of only 1701 telephones per exchange compared to the company-wide average of over 4000 telephones to the exchange. And since much of the area served by these Mississippi exchanges is sparsely settled, it takes more poles, more wire and cable and everything else that goes into telephone construction ... and more employees per 1000 telephones to provide service.

But Mississippi's "stretched-out" area is only one reason why our costs per telephone are higher; another one is inflation. It's a more important one because it has been necessary to build so many of our exchanges and lines and install so much equipment during "inflation years."

These are things which challenge the ingenuity and management skill of Southern Bell folks as we work to keep pace with Mississippi's growing needs for expanded and improved telephone facilities.

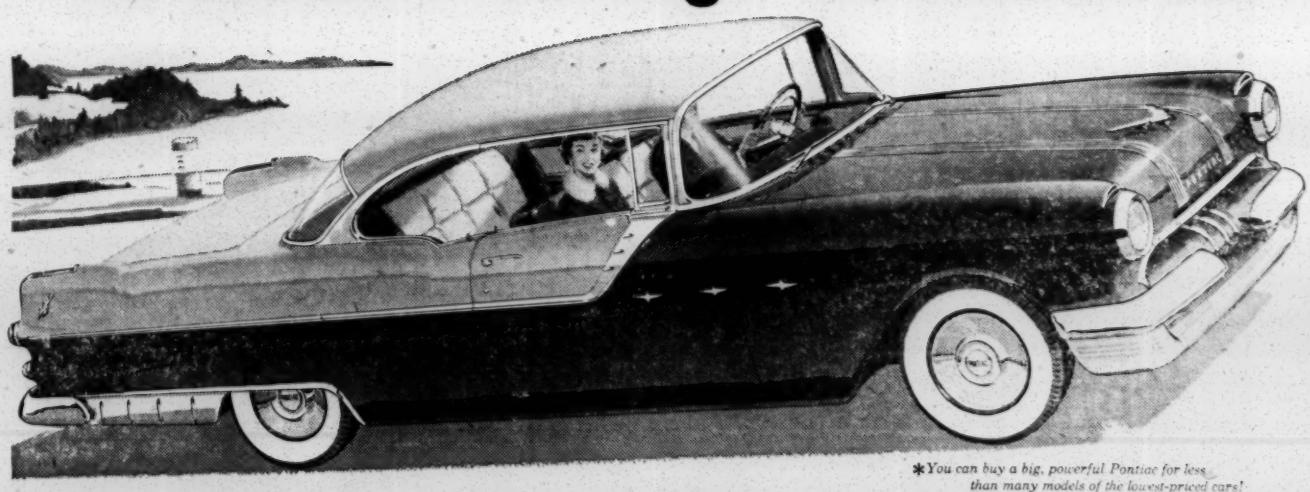
Only Car at its Price*...

So Smart! So Big! So Powerful!



*You can buy a big, powerful Pontiac for less than many models of the lowest-priced cars!

Whatever you want most in a car—beauty, size or performance—you get it in extra measure in a Pontiac. In fact, when you choose Pontiac the decision comes very easily—because Pontiac alone, at its price, gives you everything!

For example, take Pontiac's distinctive smartness. Certainly there is no question on this point. Pontiac is the one car that stands apart from all the others.

If it's size and big-car sure-footedness you want—Pontiac's your car! Pontiac's long wheelbase—124 inches in the Star Chief, shown here, and 122 inches in the 860 and 870 series—is the plus wheelbase that provides the roominess, the comfort, the satisfying road-hugging security that only a big car can supply.

As for performance—once you get behind the wheel you have all the proof you need that Pontiac is way ahead in this department, too. Pontiac's spectacular performance starts with the most modern engine of all—the powerful new Strato-Streak V-8—specifically designed for Pontiac's all-new chassis to give you balanced performance. That means smooth, eager getaway in traffic; power to spare on the open road; and even more of Pontiac's traditional economy, dependability and long life.

All this adds up to a wonderful car and—with Pontiac's remarkably low price tag—a very wonderful buy. Come in soon and talk dollars and cents. If you're in the market for any new car, you'll discover you can easily afford all the pride and pleasure of a big, powerful, luxury-loaded Pontiac.

Go Modern... Go Pontiac WITH THE SENSATIONAL STRATO-STREAK V-8

Festive Mardi Gras Costume Party

On Saturday evening, February 1th attractive Jessie Holmes Gully, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Gully, celebrated her 12th birthday at a gay Mardi Gras party between 7 and 9 o'clock. The basement recreation room proved a most attractive setting with the decorations carrying out a Valentine motif. As each guest arrived they presented the honoree a small gift and wished her a happy birthday.

The invitations were written on masks which were to be worn back to the party, and all guests came attired in attractive costumes. As the guests arrived they were given a heart and a pencil and signed for the first 5 dances. A lot of fun was caused by the confusion which followed. Then five couples entered the jitterbug contest in which Mary Sharp Lickfold and Rodney Gene Hammond were winners and were given prizes. Dancing followed and during intermission the guests matched candy bars for partners to go to the spacious living room for refreshments.

The table was decorated with a lovely Valentine centerpiece in red and white. A doll cake was surrounded by heart shaped cakes on fluted paper doilies. Red tapers dressed with red hearts and bows flanked the centerpiece and heart shaped sandwiches were arranged artistically on crystal platters. Red colored fruit punch was served from a large punch bowl where Mrs. Vivian Gunter served.

During the evening Larry Carson drew the lucky Valentine and received a beautiful potted plant, which was a gift to his mother.

During the last dance, red confetti was thrown and Valentine favors were given each guest as they bid their hostess good night. The guest list included:

Claudia Johnson, Shirley Whitaker Wayne Morgan, Gayle McMaster, Elaine Darras, Linda Stanfill, Cornelia Ferrill, Mary Alice Prichard, Fern Jones, Leigh Townes, Mary Sharp Lickfold, Roddie Bailey, Brooks Hill Byron Hunter, Walter Koonce, Diane Fedric, Harriet Rayburn, Mary James Mary Grace Furr, Glenda Gray, Allene and Eilene Hyde, Jan McCarley Stevie Lang, Eddie Hayward, Rodney Hammond, Dewey Bain, Helen Daly Wayne Gaines, Linda Tutor, Jean Tutor, Gynelle Garrett, and Larry Carson.

Invited but unable to attend were Jean Brown, Lucinda Clarke, Linda Spain, Rosalyn Perry, Beverly Horton and Curlee Boone.

Mrs. Sudie Hull of Chicago accompanied by her daughter, Mrs. T. R. Wagner, with whom she makes her home, arrived last week for a spring visit here with her sister, Mrs. Mary Scott. Mrs. Wagner has returned to Chicago where she will join her husband for a voyage to South America, expecting to be away two months.

Benton Keeton of Memphis spent Tuesday here with his mother, Mrs. John Keeton. He attended the funeral of Mr. W. H. Kirk.

BIRTHDAY PARTY FOR MISS ADELE HOFFA

Mr. and Mrs. William B. Hoffa received guests at their home Tuesday afternoon, Feb. 8 3:30 to 6 o'clock honoring their aunt Miss Adele Hoffa on her birthday.

Miss Hoffa received her friends attired in an afternoon frock of black taffeta, accented by a lovely white carnation corsage and costume jewelry.

Mrs. Hoffa wore a dark blue taffeta which featured a fitted bodice, a full ballerina skirt, and a carnation corsage.

Mrs. Charles Crenshaw, nee Martha Hoffa, assisted with receiving the guests and introducing visiting relatives from Memphis, Mr. and Mrs. Auguste Brabant and Mrs. Lee D. Jones.

Lovely gift flowers graced the tables in the living room and in the dining room the beautifully arranged table held bowls of yellow and white chrysanthemums. Mrs. Hoffa presided at the table, and their faithful man servant brought refreshments to the guests. Fruit punch was served with dainty sandwiches, white cake, pink mints and assorted nuts.

The honoree, who possesses rare charm and a delightful personality is beloved by many, all of whom wished for her a happy birthday.

Reminiscences Of The Late Jim Shaw

Jim Shaw, who had lived in this county for nearly 90 years, died last week in the fullness of his years and was buried "back home" in the Pleasant Grove Cemetery in Beat Two.

I often referred to him as being the salt of the earth and knew him well particularly in his early and late 70s, at which time the passage of time seemed not to have affected him at all, a time when he not only could, but did everything that came in and about his farm.

He was a man who had lots of homely virtues, like giving to each woman of the family, when she started out, a sewing machine. One of his many granddaughters had an accident with her eye, but old man Jim hustled her into his car and hustled her to a specialist in Memphis and saw to it that the eye was properly fixed up. He was a great man for keeping his property fixed up and in seeing that his own debts were paid and that folks who owed him, paid up.

He took no stock in Roosevelt's New Deal schemes and had no patience with them. I knew him pretty well and, as far as I know or heard, he was a "man of his word", that one could depend on what he said.

I remember that, one time Mr. Shaw told me that "folks can depend on what you say" and I told him that was the biggest compliment anyone could pay me; that, if indeed I fitted the description, that line - "You can depend on what he said" - would be about all I wanted carved on my tombstone.

Such a line, in my opinion, would be a fitting phrase to carve on the stone marking Mr. Shaw's grave at Pleasant Grove.

The Wife's Place

You don't miss a wife so much in the daytime. A good loud radio pretty well takes the place of the woman. However, it isn't much good for keeping your feet warm these cold nights.

Further Light On The "Contraption"

Last week we had a big editorial about the contraption that Byron Hunter has in his office for recording legal "papers" and in which, we bragged on how smart Byron is. As for saying that Byron is smart, we have nothing to change.

Will Neal, the State Auditor, got a hold of a copy of that editorial and wrote us to the effect: that the legislature passed a law in the Acts of 1952 which permitted the supervisors, in their discretion, to buy such a contraption. About the time that law was passed the supervisors did buy and pay for such a contraption and the contraption is right there to speak for itself.

What I had to say in the editorial inferred, but did not say that the supervisors broke the law. All the time, however, the editorial was telling how smart Byron was.

As a matter of fact, since Byron is a candidate and every candidate is entitled, under our rules, to a good write-up, and Byron has not furnished one, and I have not already given him a write-up, I am perfectly willing to let that editorial last week, in which I bragged on how smart Byron was, to be the write-up.

I repeat, Byron is a smart dude and, if this editorial and the one last week do not constitute the write-up that Byron is entitled to, our pages are open for his own write-up.

"Freedom Of The Press"

Unquestionably, the U. S. Constitution accords "freedom of the press" to newspapers, including country newspapers.

There has been a big bugaboo in advancing as a reason for not taxing advertising because of the "freedom of the press."

It is too bad that folks who talk so long and so loud about the "freedom of the press" never use such freedom.

Many country newspapers seem reluctant to use the freedom they have. Many of them seem scared to say "boo" if a bear was fixing to bite them, scared lest they lose some advertising, or that somevody will get mad and quit taking the paper.

"Not Crooks"

I took the liberty last week of saying that I sat at the feet of the late Mr. Ottie Lawrence and got a lot of political likes and dislikes from him. I mentioned several names, like the Atkinsons, the Elliotts and Warner Horton.

Ellett Lawrence, eldest son of the late Mr. Ottie, writes that, since he was in his papa's confidence, he (Ellett) knew that his papa did not think of the men named as crooks.

And that's that.

If They Have To Get Money, Tax All Of Us

I am sure that we country newspapers are just like all other folks, about to be taxed for our advertising. We want the legislators to tax others, but let us alone.

But, if the state needs taxes from us, and will tax everything else, we will just have to try to arrange to stand the taxes. There is always a way to pass on taxes to the other fellow, just send him a bill and add the taxes, just like others do.

Frankly, I dont see why farmers should not be taxed, like others are. I see no good reason (except that there are so many voters among them) why they should not belly up to the bar and pay like others do. Farmers (and I once was one of them) are the fair-haired boys and nobody wants to touch them, nor do I see why the co-ops should be exempted.

A good many of our fellow editors drag up that old "freedom of the press" idea as a rebuttal against taxing newspaper advertising. That idea is wearing mighty thin, nor can I see where there is any connection between freedom of the press and newspaper advertising.

God knows, I am not seeking any more taxes, but, if they are imposed, I will try my best to pay them, but, if I am paying them, I would feel better if I knew that the rest of them were paying such taxes and that nothing was exempted. I am willing to take pot luck with the rest of the folks.

SEEN, HEARD AND TOLD

By W. W. WHITAKER
When he feels like it.

One thing I remember about Adam Stanley is his recipe for long life and health. He said just trust God, do right and keep your bowels open. Then Adam always said that, if you did not like the mule, come again and he would swap again.

I was talking to Will Purdie Wednesday and brought up the old 'trains' that used to run to the bootleggers of Grenada. Some of the main riders were Harry Greenfield, John Huffington, Rice Lawrence and Squire Charlie Boushe, most of whom have ridden the last train to Paradise. It was quite an institution here, when the boys would get up enough money to buy a half pint at Sam Alldread's place, ride out and split the contents.

Uncle Charlie, predecessor to Squire Baker, as was well-known, liked his dram and did not take much trouble to conceal his liking for licker. At one time, Judge Boushe had a bootlegger coming before him for trial. At the time of the trial, the bootlegger was present, but Judge Boushe was absent. The bootlegger kindly volunteered to drive out to Sam Alldread's and drive in with the judge and this he did, after which he was tried, convicted and fined. The kindly old judge is dead, but that was the tale at the time. The bootlegger is here yet, but I have forgotten his name.

John Huffington was sorter of "secretary" to Judge Boushe and it was often said that the judge and John would take much of the money obtained from fines and marriage fees and spend it at either Sam's or some other bootlegger.

I used to have a lot of things to say about the "trains" running here in Grenada. Sam, with whom I fought the late war, did not like it much. One day he came to see me at "The Chinch Den" and wanted to fight it out with pistols, and, since I had none Sam offered to go over to Doaks and buy a pistol for me, an offer that I declined. Later I met Sam at the Legion meeting and we shook hands. A little bit later, Sam had some kind of stroke at the picture show and died. I am still here, while Sam is gone.

Consideration is being given, I hear, of the employment by the C. of C. of Mr. Wes Johnson, president of the NRA, at about $7500 a year to boost the Grenada Lake area. Such ambitions are, indeed, bigger than Grenada is. The employment, let me add, has not been made, just talk of it.

Guests on Sunday of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Gilion were Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ray Tyner, Canton; Peggy Harald, Goodman and Grenada; Mrs. Charlie Ringold, daughter and grandson, Miss Ferguson, Water Valley.

BRIGHT FUTURE IS PREDICTED FOR STATE BY BUSINESSMEN

The economic and business outlook for the state for 1955 and for the next decade is bright indeed in the opinion of [illegible] leaders in industry, agriculture, finance, business, professional and civic affairs from various parts of the state.

Here is the consensus of opinion of more than 225 prominent [illegible] representing [illegible] of the state's economy. They recently were asked by Governor Hugh White to forecast the future of the state for the next year and for the next 10 years.

With few exceptions their predictions were optimistic and in many cases they based such opinions on the excellent labor to be found in the state, the growing new markets, abundant natural resources, improved farming practices and cooperative government.

Industrial Expansion

At least 19 of the industries or businesses responding to the governor's letter announced current or future expansion moves to increase facilities and production to supply growing markets. One big Jackson manufacturer predicted that his company would before long have four instead of its present two plants.

The favorable comments on Mississippi labor by manufacturers operating in the state were numerous and generous. Sample: "Furniture manufacturer — Most important phase of our success has been the type worker that we have been fortunate enough to train." Another comment: "Mississippi has a class of laborers that are very easily trained and take great personal pride in high quality workmanship." Still another comment: "We feel that our productive labor per hour's pay is higher in this plant than in many other locations in which we operate in the South."

An excellent example of the eagerness of Mississippians to work is found in the case of an industry which recently located in Holly Springs. The firm advertised for 100 employees and received 1,000 applications.

Although optimism was the general theme of the majority of letters to the governor, quite a few of the writers expressed concern over increased taxes, the workmen's compensation law and the possibility of the repeal of the recently passed right to work law.

All agreed, however, that the governor's BAWI program had probably done more than any other one thing to develop the state.

Diversified Farming

In the field of agriculture, leaders generally agreed that despite federal acreage reductions, Mississippi in the next decade will come into her own with diversified and mechanized farming and the introduction of irrigation.

Attention to livestock, dairying and poultry, and the diversion of more land to grain crops and feed stuffs for both human and animal consumption provide the solution to many of the problems which now beset the Mississippi farmer, according to a cross section of agricultural leaders.

Carnation and Borden both forsee a bright future for the dairy industry in the state, and the latter has based a recent state-wide expansion program on this belief.

Feed, seed and fertilizer interests also project bigger volumes of business in 1955.

The wood using industry also is highly optimistic in view of predicted record construction in 1955. Major wallboard manufacturing firms in the state expect better business in 1956 and possible expansions of facilities in some instances. Furniture manufacturers also are optimistic, as is the box industry and the lumber industry.

Boom From Oil

The oil industry made tremendous strides in 1954, and spokesmen foresee a highly successful 1955. Speaking for the industry, one leader says: "The central section of Mississippi will see the greatest number of drilling rigs searching for oil that we have ever seen. The impact of this drilling program together with reasonable anticipated recoveries of oil should lay the foundation for quite a boom in all of the central area."

Industries engaged in metals and machinery generally hold the same optimistic outlook as their neighboring manufactures. Following are sample comments:

Comments From Industry

A tool manufacturer says: "Even if the national economy deflates, the South's new factories will be among the last to sag, as they are among the newest and most efficient in the United States." A Delta tank manufacturer formerly from Texas says: "I am of the firm opinion that Mississippi and the Delta will grow by leaps and bounds. The possibilities are tremendous, and with the continued support of our state government and its far-sighted leadership, there is absolutely no reason why the state cannot be one of the richest in the nation." A metal trim plant official adds: "Our optimism as to the future of our operation in the state is evident by the fact that we are beginning construction of 15,000 more feet of space."

A foundry official says: "We are expanding our business somewhat to take care of what we believe will be better business." Another comments: "Our customers are more interested in quality than they were in the past."

Wearing Apparel

Although some phases of the apparel industry suffered difficulty nationally, Mississippi manufacturers, even in those lines, expressed satisfaction with past experiences and were optimistic over the future.

A shirt manufacturer says the state "has many advantages to offer industry and there is every reason to believe that these advantages will continue to attract new industries in future years." Another in the same line says the "attitude of employees" is the secret of his success. A shoe manufacturer who recently located in the state says: "We certainly have been pleased with our Mississippi operation and anticipate good production and business during 1955 and after. As a matter of fact, I think, should we find a need for a new plant for shoes of this general type again in the future, we would strongly consider another location in Mississippi."

Tires, Tubes, Flooring

A major tire and tube company is planning for increased business during the next 12 months and has spent considerable money in improving and modernizing facilities. Another is looking to plastic irrigation pipe as a new product.

The [illegible] flooring concern operating in Mississippi forsees a 6 to [illegible] per cent increase in business this year, and forecasts a 65 per cent increase in its business by 1965.

Electrical [illegible]

One major [illegible] plant is currently undergoing [illegible] expansion program and foresees good business as a result of construction expansion and the need for new school rooms. A newcomer to the electrical industry in the state has this to say: "At the outset it was the rapidly expanding economy of Mississippi, and the South as a whole, that prompted this company to establish a manufacturing facility in the state early in 1952. To date our first conviction of the South's bright industrial future has been justified, and we have every reason to believe that the next decade will witness wonderful accomplishments in the South."

Business of another in an allied field has increased 10-fold in a five-year period.

Chemical Industry

The outlook for the chemical industry is especially good throughout the South and in Mississippi, as indicated by comments from experts in the field.

A South Mississippi chemical company officials "forsees nothing short of prosperity for his operation for the next five years. Another central Mississippi industrialist predicts that his company will "more than triple itself in the next three years." He says his original product is doubling in sales each year.

A North Mississippi corporation head adds that his company at present produces only one type of material, "but plans are underway to double the present capacity of the plant within the year and process more types of products from the minerals available."

A newcomer says he expects and hopes that the atmosphere in Mississippi will be so attractive as to compel his firm to expand existing facilities and add new products as markets develop.

Utilities & Railroads

The two major private power companies in the state expressed their faith in the future by calling attention to big new generating stations built with an eye to future industrial growth. Two major gas distributing companies also see promise of new business, one having spent major sums for increasing pipeline service, and the other planning major expansion during 1955.

Railroads are basing big 1955 investments in service facilities on the hope that new plants will inevitably locate in the state in 1955.

Bankers also point out that Mississippi's financial institutions are now in the strongest position in history, with ample funds available for loans to both agriculture and industry at reasonable rates. Resources of banks continue to grow, the spokesmen point out, and should reflect substantial increases in keeping with our industrial growth over years ahead.
